Nuventive Expands into Australasia with Distribution Partner S1 Consulting & Software Services

Leading provider of Comprehensive Individual and Institutional Assessment Solutions Partners with Experienced Consultancy in Australia

PITTSBURGH, PA, May 31, 2005– Nuventive, a leading provider of individual and institutional assessment solutions, today announced that it has signed S1 Consulting & Software Services (S1), a leading specialist in information technology in Southeast Asia, as a new distribution partner.

S1 will market and deploy TracDat, a leading institutional planning and assessment solution for education, and iWebfolio, a leading intellectual asset management system as the backbone of the continuous improvement-focused integrated assessment and technology solutions it provides to higher and continuing education institutions in Australasia.

“Educational Institutions today are focused on connecting the vision of the institution with programs, targeted outcomes and ongoing improvement“, said Martin Halmarick, Senior Partner of S1. “Institutions that realize the strategic value of ongoing planning, assessment, measurement and reflection, driven by focused, on-demand solutions, will continue to excel in the increasingly competitive market for the delivery of high value education. Working with Nuventive, our objective is to provide institutions with solutions that allow them to align educational initiatives with organizational goals and objectives and achieve significant increases in performance and results”.

“The Nuventive suite of Individual and Institutional Assessment solutions is redefining the approach to a broad range of issues in the higher and continuing education market today,” said Halmarick. “The Nuventive and S1 relationship will provide formidable competition in our marketplace”, he said. The TracDat and iWebfolio suite delivers capabilities beyond that of any other vendor and breaks new ground in the delivery of a complete integrated solution that addresses the needs of both individuals and institutions. As an innovative industry leader, Nuventive will give us a leading edge in our marketplace and enable us to provide the best possible products and services to organizations in our region.”

“Nuventive continues to build strong alliances with partners around the world who lead their regions in a wide range of educational, consulting and technology specialties,” said Dr. David Raney, CEO and co-founder. “Working with S1 will allow us to bring our solutions to a much broader audience in the fast-growing Southeast Asia institutional and individual assessment markets.”

“Our goal is to raise the market’s awareness of the vital role that integrated individual and institutional assessment solutions play in the success of today’s students and institutions,” said Scott Johnson, Nuventive Vice President of Worldwide Sales. “We look forward to working with S1 to lead the industry in this rapidly growing new market.”
