
Nuventive Recognized as Microsoft US Public Sector 2017 Partner of the Year Award Winner

PITTSBURGH, PA – December 22, 2017 – Nuventive, a provider of cloud based institutional improvement solutions and services to higher-education systems, proudly announces that it has been named Digital Transformation Partner of the Year – Education as part of the Microsoft US Public Sector Awards, which recognizes the company for exemplary commitment to Microsoft and the higher education institutions it serves.

“We are honored to be recognized for our work in supporting institutional transformation by helping colleges and universities use information more effectively to achieve their aspirations. Our Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI) solution is designed to increase the internal capacity for data informed improvement, allowing institutions to achieve more, improve faster and adapt to change with more agility,” said David Raney, chief executive officer of Nuventive. “Our collaboration with Microsoft has been a critical component in creating new ways to work with our clients and in allowing them to see even better outcomes.”

Winners were chosen from more than 100 organizations across the US Public Sector segment areas they serve.

The Microsoft US Public Sector 2017 Partner of the Year Awards honor partners that have demonstrated business excellence in delivering Microsoft solutions to multiple customers over the past year. The award for Digital Transformation Partner of the Year - Education, recognizes Nuventive as succeeding in effective engagement with its local Microsoft office while showcasing innovation and business impact, driving customer satisfaction and winning new customers.

“The 2017 Public Sector Partner of the Year Award winners represent the most innovative and transformative work being done across our partner community,” said Gail Thomas, Vice President, US Public Sector, Microsoft. “We are honored to recognize Nuventive as one of the recipients of Microsoft’s US Public Sector 2017 Partner of the Year Award.”
